TELETHERAPEPY SERVICES AGREEMENT AND INFORMED CONSENT

1. Unless we explicitly agree otherwise, our Teletherapy exchange is confidential. Any personal information you choose to share with me will be held in the strictest confidence. Just as for my face-to-face clients, I will not release your information to anyone without your prior approval, or I am required to do so by law. In Indiana we are not required to notify authorities if we become convinced a client is about to physically harm someone. We do, however, have a duty to inform the authorities if there is suspicion or evidence of abuse of children, the elderly (over 65) or people with disabilities.

2. You understand that our Teletherapy occurs in the state of Indiana, (USA), and is governed by the laws of that state. In a manner of speaking, you use this modality to visit me in my Indiana office; where we meet to do our work.

3. Helping you build the life you want is what our exchange is all about. We should not continue any process that is counter-productive in that respect. Either of us is free to terminate our relationship at any time and for any reason. If you decide to terminate, I believe it would be to your benefit to drop me a short note stating the reasons for your leaving. There would, of course, be no charge for such a note. In the unlikely event I become convinced our Teletherapy is not in your best interests (see below), I will explain that to you and suggest some alternative options better suited to your needs.

4. While Teletherapy is a great way to get help with many of life’s problems, overwhelming or potentially dangerous challenges are best met with face-to-face professional support. You understand that our Teletherapy is neither a universal substitute, nor the same as, face-to-face psychotherapy treatment. You accept the distinctions made using Teletherapy vs. face-to-face psychotherapy. In particular, you accept that Teletherapy does not provide emergency services.

5. You are responsible for information security on your computer. If you decide to keep copies of our emails or communication on your computer, it’s up to you to keep that information secure. Unfortunately, I cannot guarantee the security of our emails as they travel between our computers but Skype or Movis is encrypted, so it is confidential. It is possible, though unlikely, to intercept emails in transit. If you are concerned about that possibility, please consider the option to encrypt our emails. Even if someone were to intercept an encrypted e-mail, they would not be able to read the encoded message.

6. Our Teletherapy is a means by which you, the e-client, can receive coaching, counseling, information and guidance from an experienced psychotherapist. It is perhaps most accurately perceived as a process creating, over time, a trusting and collaborative relationship. In our collaboration, you retain the right to determine which topics we cover and the depth of consideration each receives. In other words, as an e-client, you are free to contribute or withhold any information you choose. Moreover, you are under no obligation to apply information and/or opinions I contribute to our Teletherapy. While I hope that you will find our exchange useful in your efforts to help yourself and improve your life, it is not possible to guarantee that; despite the ever-increasing positive feedback from e-clients, Teletherapy therapy is best considered experimental until its efficacy has been validated scientifically.

Telecommunication: Telehealth (e-therapy) is the use of electronic transmissions to treat the needs of a patient. In this case, we offer both video and audio forms of communication via the Internet and/or telephone. This means the practice of health care delivery, diagnosis, consultation, treatment, transfer of medical data, and education using interactive audio, video, or data communications. The risks involved with Telehealth include the potential release of private information due to the complexities and abnormalities involved with the Internet. Viruses, Trojans, and other involuntary intrusions have the ability to grab and released information you may desire to keep private. Furthermore, there is the risk of being overhead by anyone near you if you do not place yourself in a private area and open to other’s intrusion. The advantages are that you may be treated from any location at a mutually agreeable time.

_____________ Initials
It is YOUR responsibility to create an environment on your end of the Telemedicine transmission that is not subject to unexpected or unauthorized intrusion of your personal information. It is MY responsibility for me, the therapist, to do the same.

(For a client who resides outside their e-therapist’s state of residence and professional licensure, there is an important issue that should be understood by clients before therapy begins: By utilizing these therapeutic services, the client agrees that he or she is soliciting the services of a professional outside of his or her state of residence. By doing this, the client agrees that the “point-of-service” of therapy is to occur in the therapist’s state of residence and licensure, not the client’s. In essence, the client is using the telephone or the Internet to virtually travel to the therapist (the therapist’s state of professional practice). Hence, therapists are accountable to and agree to abide by the ethical and legal guidelines prescribed by their state of licensure and residence. By agreeing to solicit the therapist’s services, the client agrees to these terms. If you do not understand, or have any questions regarding this issue, please feel free to ask me about this issue.

There are no other explicit or implied commitments in our Teletherapy relationship.

I have read and understand the information provided above. I have discussed it with my psychotherapist, and all of my questions have been answered to my satisfaction.
